

Johnny Test

Series Description

What kid wouldn't dream of having a baseball bat that hits home runs every time? Or growing gills that let him breathe underwater? Or how about zooming to the moon in a personal spaceship? Well, Johnny Test can do all those things and more, thanks to his twin prodigy inventor sisters, in the outrageous fantasy-action-comedy "Johnny Test."

For 11-year-old Johnny, it's all about the now! He's beyond fearless and obsessed with breaking limits—speed limits, time limits, physical limits, you name it. Take all that preadolescent oomph, and throw in the ultimate companion—a genetically enhanced pet dog—and we've got an unstoppable combo!

Johnny's super-genius twin sisters, Susan and Mary, are the only 13-year-olds in the doctorate program at the Porkbelly Mega Institute of Technology. His amazing sisters can create anything they imagine, from a time machine to a supersonic scooter to everlasting lip gloss—that is, when they're not trying to solve the trials and tribulations of adolescence through science. Bribed with spectacular gifts, special powers and even the offer to do his chores, Johnny willingly acts as his sisters' guinea pig.

Susan and Mary transformed Johnny's mangy mutt, Dukey, into the coolest canine ever seen—not only can Dukey fetch the paper, he can also read it to you! As Johnny's reluctant pal on all his misadventures, Dukey often tries to provide the voice of sarcastic reason and would go the distance and beyond for his pal Johnny.

Johnny's suburban hometown of Porkbelly plays host to more than two brilliant scientists, however. The evil schemes of spoiled-rich kid Eugene Hamilton—aka Bling-Bling Boy—plague Johnny and his sisters, often resulting in chaos and quantum craziness.

Whether he's defending Earth's supply of Super Hot Ranch-Flavored Nacho Blasters, battling real live monster trucks or fleeing danger with his "lower posterior energy bursts," Johnny always emerges from his out-of-this-world escapades unscathed. Unfortunately, Dukey's not always so lucky, and Susan and Mary are often grounded by their parents.

"Johnny Test" is produced by Warner Bros. Animation under the guidance of executive producers Sander Schwartz and Loris Kramer Lunsford, creator/producer Scott Fellows, producer Chris Savino and creative executives Kim Christianson and Amy Wagner.